TRAYN NUTRITION

Chosen to a standard. Tested before release.

SELECTED USP

Our launch commitment is to select ingredients against documented quality standards, independently test manufactured finished batches before release, and make relevant batch results accessible.

Initial audience: regular whey buyers who want clear ingredient choices and product evidence. Validate this audience through customer interviews.

01 / PREPARE

Pre-launch

01 WEEKS 6-5

Define the product and the standards

Founder: confirm the product, ingredient specifications, qualified suppliers, price, stock and delivery coverage. Agree sampling, tests and release criteria with the lab and quality adviser. Marketer: interview 10-15 prospective buyers and compare 3-5 relevant brands.

02 WEEKS 4-3

Build the audience and the evidence pages

Marketer: publish a tracked, opt-in waitlist. Prepare the product page, report page, FAQs, founder story and ingredient explanations. Shortlist suitable trainers or creators and prepare two weeks of launch content.

03 WEEKS 2-1

Test the batch and the buying journey

Founder and quality adviser: test the finished batch, review results and record the release decision. Operations: test checkout, stock, dispatch and support. Marketer: announce the launch date once readiness is confirmed.

Release condition The batch meets agreed criteria, relevant reports are accessible, claims are supported, and ordering and fulfilment are ready.

Days 0 to 30

Make the first purchase work

Day 0 is the first day sales open. Launch after readiness is confirmed; adjust the date if manufacturing or testing takes longer.

01

DAYS 0-7

Launch to a focused audience

Open to the waitlist, then the wider audience. Publish the matching batch report. Run a small sampling programme using released stock and tracked creator links. If budget allows, test one paid channel with a spend cap. Check orders and dispatch daily.

02

DAYS 8-14

Listen and fix the first purchase experience

Follow up after delivery. Gather feedback on taste, mixability, packaging and value. Check where visitors abandon checkout, answer recurring questions and fix repeated product or delivery issues before increasing traffic.

03

DAYS 15-30

Turn customer learning into improvements

Request honest reviews and permission to reuse customer content. Improve FAQs and product information. Compare waitlist, organic, paid and partner results. At day 30, agree what to continue, change or stop.

CONTENT AND CONTACT

A manageable weekly rhythm

SOCIAL

Start with 3 feed posts weekly: ingredient choices, product evidence and practical use. Use stories to answer questions. Instagram is the initial channel.

DIRECT FOLLOW-UP

Use an opted-in waitlist, launch message, delivery check-in and review request. Add replenishment reminders when usage timing is understood.

Keep ingredient and testing claims specific to documented practice and the scope of the report.

Days 31 to 90

DAYS 31-60

Build repeat demand

- Improve the messages and channels that bring suitable customers; test one major change at a time.
- Use opted-in replenishment reminders based on actual usage. Continue productive gym and creator partnerships.
- Review repeat purchases among customers who have had time to finish their pack, customer issues and stock.

DAYS 61-90

Decide what to scale

- Compare sales, acquisition costs, contribution, repeat buying and remaining stock.
- Increase spend only when economics, supply and customer experience support it.
- Plan the next batch including testing time. Add flavours only where demand supports them.

REVIEW WEEKLY / DECIDE AT DAYS 30, 60 AND 90

The scorecard

Qualified waitlist	Opted-in prospects and their acquisition source.
Conversion	Completed orders / website sessions, by source.
Acquisition cost	Paid media spend / attributed new customers.
Contribution	Net sales less product, fulfilment, fees, returns and marketing.
Repeat and service	Eligible repeat buyers, complaints, dispatch and sellable stock.

Set sales targets and an acquisition-cost ceiling after confirming stock, price, costs and budget. Do not rely on unproven repeat purchases to cover losses.

PROPOSED MARKETING BUDGET SPLIT

Illustrative allocation, not a spending commitment. Fund manufacturing, lab testing and baseline operating costs separately.

OWNERSHIP AND MARKETER HANDOFF

Founder + quality adviser: ingredient standards, testing and release. Marketer: calendar, content, acquisition and reporting. Operations: checkout, stock, dispatch and support.

Next: agree a weekly calendar, costs, owners and targets. Hold a 30-minute weekly review. At day 90, decide on spend, the next batch and the next 90 days.

Evidence guidance: NABL scope of accreditation and FSSAI claims guidance. Confirm product requirements with the quality adviser.
